

Safety is state-determined, not sample-determined candidates drawn from one state share their safety outcome

The first two bars coincide in every configuration: the fraction of individually safe candidates equals the fraction of queries where every candidate is safe. Independent sampling would put the third bar two to three orders lower.